Regular Past Tense Verbs Reminisce About The Day

How To Play

Before bed, talk about the day using the past tense. In this activity, use of past tense verbs happen very naturally. However, be aware that open ended questions (i.e., How was your day?) can be difficult for some children, especially young children. There are more specific questions below to try at first.

After you ask a question, wait for your child to respond. If the response is correct using the regular past tense, praise him or her and ask another question. If your child doesn't use correct grammar, say the correct response and ask for a repetition. Then, move on to a new question.

Example Questions

- What was your favorite part of the day?
- What TV show did you watch?
- What did you like at dinner?
- What did you do at the park?
- Who today did you play with today?

Tip:

Try to make this game fun and enjoyable. Don't turn it into a quiz! Don't over correct either or your child will start avoiding it. After a few nights of the same routine, your child will start to pick up on the correct answers! Also, take turns yourself so your child hears a lot of correct past tense grammar.
