What/What Doing Questions Reading

Needed Materials

Books

How To Play

There are two different ways to play this game. The first way is the easiest.

1. Sit down and read with your child. While reading, periodically point to pictures and say “what is this?” Wait for your child to answer. If he/she says the correct answer, great! If not, correct your child by saying the right answer and move on.
2. Once your child learns to answer “what” questions about objects, move on to “what doing” questions. As you start reading, ask what the character is doing or about to do? Such as “what is George doing” and hopefully your child will respond with the correct answer such as “making a cake.” If not, say the correct answer and have your child repeat.
